

New Year, new Qi – 2021 THE METAL OX YEAR

2021 THE METAL OX YEAR

More than 2 billion people celebrate Chinese New Year annually, making it approximately 1 out of 4 people on the entire planet participating in this festival. Every year the incoming annual energy chart is looked at for guidance. This chart is used to foresee opportunities and challenges, and learn how best to tap into the environment to attain one's potential. People typically do this by studying the Qi of the year and co-relating that to their own destiny/BaZi chart, followed by tweaking the Fengshui of one's home and office. Given below are a few DIY Fengshui tips and BaZi updates for 2021. Based on Hsia or Farmer's calendar, 2021 is the year of the Metal Ox.

You could have an ox in your chart if you were born in January, in the years 1961, 1973, 1985, 1997, 2009 or between 1 am-3 am. The ox being the visiting zodiac animal of the year is referred to as the TAI SUI. A great deal of attention and spotlight will be given to those with Ox in their chart -so it's important for those with the Ox to do something noteworthy. Traditionally, people were apprehensive of having the Tai Sui in their chart, but it's an excellent opportunity to showcase your talents in today's age.

The Goat, a zodiac animal clashes with the Ox, so if you were born in July, in the years 1967, 1979, 1991, 2003, 2015, or between the hours of 1-3 pm, you could expect some inevitable changes in your life. The change could be as simple as one in your lifestyle/diet or job department, career, home, or country.

Feng Shui Tips for 2021

1. The best sectors this year are in the West, Northeast, and South. Use these rooms or locations in your house for important decisions, career-related work and networking. You could also place a candle/ music/dehumidifier/ clock to activate the Qi in these areas.
2. Students and people pursuing any education or study would greatly benefit by using the EAST room or sector of their home. You could further enhance this area by placing four bamboo stems in a freshwater vase.
3. The SOUTHEAST and NORTH are the unfavourable sectors and best avoided if possible. If these areas are at your front door or bedroom -best to place heavy metal items here to reduce the negative earth energies.
4. Place RED items in the SOUTHWEST of your home and be reminded to avoid unnecessary arguments.
5. Avoid any renovations, loud noise or structural changes in the EAST and SOUTHEAST of your home.

STEP 1
Square off the layout plan.
Make a cross and find the center point.

STEP 2
Use your phone compass to find one direction from the Center of the house

STEP 3
Make a grid with 9 sectors and fill in the directions based of your compass reading.
